

A Family Travel Guide to the Sullivan Catskills

When I think back on my childhood, some of my favorite memories take place in Sullivan County, New York. My grandparents owned a vacation home in Rock Hill, about 90 miles northwest of New York City—a 10-minute drive from Monticello, and I would spend every summer at that lake house. My sister and I attended a local day camp and I remember every Monday the camp bus would drop us off at the community pool where we would meet our mom and grandma to have pizza dinners along with other local families.

Outside of our little HOA, there was always so much to explore. I remember summer days spent visiting the animals at local farms and drinking the freshest milk—my dad even convinced me that chocolate milk came straight from the brown cows. As the weather turned brisk, my family would drive around to see the changing leaves on the mountains and deep into winter, we would layer on our snowsuits and ski the local slopes.

Where to Stay

The Kartrite Hotel & Waterpark

Just step through the hotel lobby and your family will find a two-acre indoor waterpark with slides, pools, and splash areas for the whole family. Need a break from the water? On the hotel's lower level there is a massive arcade, several restaurants, and a spa (yes, you deserve some R&R on this trip, too). In the summer and fall, the hotel hosts evening activities like s'more making at the outdoor fire pits. When it's time for bed, you'll rest easy knowing the family suites have a separate room with bunk beds for the kids.
